Wise your choice, the world will say,
That sees you fresh and fair to-day
As in the spring-time of your years,
Those hazel eyes undimmed with tears,
That forehead all unlined with care,
Nor streaked with gray that chestnut hair.

Yet if you could have dared to lay Unfaltering hands in mine, and say, "I trust you still, nor count the cost "Something, I doubt not, you had lost, Yet found when all was told remain To you and me some larger gain.

Not loveless nor unsweet my days; I toll, nor miss some meed of praise; Had you been with me they had known The grace they lack, and thou kadst grown, O weak but pure and tender heart! To something nobler than thou art.

Ah! better had we both been laid To rest for ever, ere the shade Of that cold worldiness had made Division worse than death, and bade Our souls be parted evermore, Still strangers on the heavenly shore.

at two o'clock, it was fully three before the army of 2000 persons took up its line of march. The streets everywhere designated as the line of march were thronged with anxious spectators. There is no describing the excitement which existed across the canal. The population turned out en masse in holiday attire, and filled every foot of standing room, climbed upon the tops of houses and suspended themselves from all manner of dangerous places. It was as good natured, happy a crowd as the line of the week, dry goods, $1,165,000; general merchandise, $5,272,000. Cotton dull and lower; superfine State and Western $5 50a5 75. Every house was adorned with flags, evergreens and festoons of flowers, the tri-colors of the revolution of '48 siding with the Stars and Stripes. Fourth street was grand. The entire line was a massive decoration, and banners and flags were countless in style shane and variety. were countless in style, shape and variety. From Main street to Central avenue there was one great sea of humanity. They gathered as early as one o'clock; they fined the sidewalks; they covered steps and alltudes of every description; they invaded houses and took possession of the outlooks, and there wasn't an scription; they invaded houses and took possesion of the outlooks, and there wasn't an empty window from Merriams' to Wells'. Shop windows were cleaned out and ladies climbed into them, and the dear beauties displayed themselves in garlands and festoons from windows further removed from the ground than the show windows.

All things being in readiness, at 3 o'clock the joyous army of vocalists who have come among us to awaken sweet melodies began its line of march, turning from Walnut into Court, and moving westward. At the same moment the artillery on Jackson Hill, in charge of Colonel De Beck, pealed forth its roaring salute, and repeated the same at given intervals. Past the courthouse, with its beautiful decoration and suggestive devices, the procession moved to the enlivening strains of a dozen bands of music, and turned into Vine street. Here they were at home. Here a grand ovation was tendered from one end of the street to the other. The procession moved northward, greeted with cheers from thousands of honest German throats upon every hand. Here the decorations were most profuse, the arrohes innumerable and the flowers without and fuse, the arches innumerable and the flowers without end.

The exterior of Queen City Hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens and flags, which formed the back ground for many lagenious designs. Spanning the street were bands of evergreens looped into an infinite variety of shapes. Surmounting the design was an eagle, with wings spread and flying through the air, bearing a golden harp, which is suspended from its mouth, with the inscription: "St. Cecilia Mænnerghor." Beneath this, in German, the words "Im Liede stark, Deutsch-bis ins mark."

Marching through to the head of Vine street, the procession turned into Main street and came down to Fourth. All along Main street.

THE EUROPEAN DEMAND FOR BREADSTUFFS.-The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger thus writes on Thursday:

In the early part of the week, there was a very active demand in this market for breadvery active demand in this market for oread-stuffs, on French account, induced by the wide-extended drought which exists there, and the consequent injury to the cereal crops. The demand is steadily on the increase, attended now by a marked advance in prices, and likewise an enhancement of grain freights. All the spring wheat that is coming on from the West is taken as fast as the railroads can the West is taken as fast as the railroads can bring it. The advance in flour yesterday was from filteen to thirty cents per burrel, while wheat was from three to five cents per bushel higher. To-day there has been a further advance in the former equal to 10a20 cents, and 2a3 cents in the latter. Within the thirty-four hours past, four vessels have been chartered for French ports, to carry wheat and flour—the engagements amounting to about half a million of dollars. This afternoon, it may be said that about all of the available tonnage in port was taken up for Harre. One of the said that about all of the avance contact in port was taken up for Havre. One of the steamers of the National Line, at 2 P. M., was put on the berth, and in ten minutes all her freight room was engaged. This simple fact shows not only the magnitude, but the urgen-er of the magnetic
